Fundamental Beliefs

As a socially responsible member of the global community, we are fully engaged in the important issues of world ecology, actively contributing to the protection of both human health and the natural environment, and furthering the aims of sustainable social development through all of our corporate activities.

Fundamental Policies

Honda Trading deals in a variety of products and services—light metals, steel, plastics & resins, machinery & equipment, dies & molds, transportation equipment parts, agricultural & marine products, daily essentials and others—on a global basis. In order to develop such activities in a socially responsible manner, we maintain a steadfast focus on environmental consequences, striving to assure that all of our actions reflect the following principles.

1. We evaluate the ecological effects of individual activities, products and services, and set and implement specific objectives in regard to important environmental issues, to assure consistent improvement and prevent pollution.
2. We recognize the finite nature of global resources and contribute to the restraint of global warming and the encouragement of a society geared toward recycling and reuse, through reduced consumption of resources and energy in our own offices, reduction of waste and aggressive promotion of business in the sphere of environmental protection.
3. We adhere to domestic and overseas laws and regulations applicable to ecologically influential activities, products and services, along with other appropriate and agreed-upon guidelines for environmental protection.
4. We work to assure a full understanding of ecological issues and information, through educational and enlightenment activities, enhancing environmental consciousness and taking appropriate protective actions.
5. We actively participate in ecology-related activities and strive to live together in sustainable harmony with society and the natural environment.
